My dear Roy,

I am sorry not to have acknowledged your article sooner. It was, however, forwarded to me in America whence I have only just got back.

I am delighted to have it for the Journal, and have already sent it to the printer, so that you will receive a proof shortly.

Whether I can print it in September I shall not know until a little later on. But my impression is that my existing commitments are too great, and that I shall have to hold you over for December

On a first reading your points seemed to me to be sound, and I found nothing to criticise.

Yours ever,

JM Keynes
